Stroker rides to recovery

By Suzanne Sproul

Veronica McKeen collapsed from a severe stroke when she was 23 and her doctors said they didn't expect her to ever walk again.

McKeen, now 49, has proven them wrong. The Ontario woman is on a personal campaign to help educate other stroke victims and their families that the road back to recovery may be steep but can be scaled.

To demonstrate her will and desire, McKeen recently went on a 640-mile bicycle ride from Glendora to Sacramento.

Along the way, McKeen planned to stop and visit nine or 10 stroke groups like the Organization for After-Stroke Resocialization Inc., in Ontario. McKeen credits the group she joined several years ago with helping provide the support and encouragement she needed to put her life back on track.

"I am not a joiner. But when I found out about OASR I wanted to join. It took me three weeks to get up the courage to go there but when I did I found a group of caring individuals who wanted to help me," she said.

It took her almost a dozen years to take charge of her life again after she suffered the stroke. A slight limp is the only apparent reminder of her battle.

"I want this ride to convince other strokers that there is life after stroke," she said. "I hope, too, that it will help the public at large to understand more about stroke and the people who have undergone strokes.

"I am so thrilled to have this opportunity. I don't know if people will understand this," said McKeen, sitting in the Upland living room of a friend before she began the race

R.C., Fontana among state's quick growers

By David Madsen

Rancho Cucamonga and Fontana are two of the fastest growing cities in the state, according to state population figures released last week.

The cities grew faster than any others with populations between 50,000 and 100,000, said Linda Von Rotz of the State Finance Department.

Rancho Cucamonga grew by 17.7 percent between 1987 and 1988. Fontana increased its population by 16.2 percent during the same period.

"We were surprised by the numbers. We did not expect them to be that high. The important thing is that the growth has been very responsible," said Lauren Wasserman, Rancho Cucamonga city manager.

The city's population was at 94,614, as of Jan. 1, up from 80,407 the year before.

However, officials were not alarmed by the figures; the city simply has more people living here than previously thought, Wasserman added.

Of 440 incorporated cities in the state, Rancho Cucamonga's growth rate was ranked ninth and Fontana's was 10th, said Von Rotz.

The two cities also lead all others in growth in San Bernardino County.

Annexation idea may not even fly

By David Madsen

An effort to have Rancho Cucamonga annex 24.6-acres of Upland territory along the Cucamonga Creek Flood Control Channel faces some rough sailing.

Upland wants to unload the land that a controversial housing project is scheduled to be built on, but opposition to the proposal already has been voiced by one Rancho Cucamonga offical.

Rancho Cucamonga
Councilwoman Deborah Brown said she opposes the proposed annexation because of the added strain it would place on city services.

"The reason they want to dump the land on us, is because it's hard to service. They should have thought of that a long time ago," she said. "Rancho is the bad guy on wanting to realign Grove, but then they ask, 'Could you take care of this for us?,' " she said, referring to Rancho Cucamonga's plan to channel Red Hill Drive into Grove Avenue, a proposal that Upland opposes.

However, Rancho Cucamonga Councilman Charles Buquet said he would be receptive to the

Yanks, Soviets share need to curb drug use

By Natalie Shore

Chemical abuse may vary between the United States and the Soviet Union, but the need to stamp out alcohol and drug use is the same, says Alexander Remizov, a member of the Soviet Temperance Society, who visited Valley View continuation school last week.

"We have common problems ... it is necessary to work together," he said.

Remizov met with students and area school and community officials in Ontario that day as part of an American-Soviet exchange program allowing Soviet delegates to study American substance abuse

The exchange is part of an unprecedented tour of hospitals, treatment centers and other substance abuse programs that Remizov and eight other delegates are making throughout the United States.

Their visit reciprocates the visit of an American delegation that toured Soviet substance abuse programs and hospitals in November. The exchange is a direct result of the 1987 Geneva Summit talks between President Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev, said Peg Hill, district coordinator of the visit.

Fontana's population jumped from 59,968 to 69,657 during the period.

Other area cities to experience rapid growth included Ontario, Chino, and San Dimas.

Ontario's population jumped from 113,600 to 118,800 last year, an increase of 4.6 percent.

Ontario was the sixth fastest growing city its category (100,000 to 150,000) in the state.

Chino's population increased from 52,000 to 56,100, 7.9

percent, and San Dimas grew from 29,650 to 31,700, or 7.1 percent.

Chino was the 10th fastest growing city among those with a population between 50,000 and 100,000.

At the same time, the state gained 275,700 housing units, reaching a total of 10,708,300. This, the department said, is the highest number of housing units added during any year in the decade of the 1980s.

Third in growth among medium-sized cities was Moreno Valley in Riverside County.

At the same time, several cities with populations under 50,000 also experienced rapid growth, credited by the Finance Department to the state's expanding prison system. These include Avenal in Kings County, 77.1 percent; lone in Amador County, 64.3 percent and Folsom in Sacramento County, 21 percent.

Two R.C. parks give headache to city officials

The two biggest parks in Rancho Cucamonga have provided quite a few lessons and headaches - for city

Open just one year this July, Red Hill and Heritage community parks never have been strangers to controversy.

The green tranquility and sports facilities of the parks have been successful in attracting thousands of visitors, but the city won't retrace its steps in tackling new park projects.

Even though they have had their hands full working out the parks' bugs, city officials have always lavished glowing praise upon the parks.

But as the city progresses with its ambitious park development schedule, things

One of the most notable changes is that the development of parksites, which in the past was completely under the auspices of the Community Services Department, will from now on be carried out with the involvment of the city's engineering and planning departments as well. As one city official said, city planners have more experience in considering how the project meshes with its surroundings.

With changes like these, city officials hope the planned 40acre community park in Etiwanda and the 100-acre Central Park won't encounter the same snags as Red Hill and Heritage.

The two parks started making the news long before they were opened when the City Council

The funding secured, the city later awarded a $5.8 million contract to a company that declared bankruptcy soon after the parks were completed, leaving the city to either deal with the subcontractors to have imperfections repaired or to do the work itself.

City Engineer Russ Maguire said the city has decided to

R.C. council gets tough on parking near school

By Lee Peterson

Rancho Cucamonga's City Council last week stopped short of banning student parking in the residential streets surrounding Alta Loma High School.

The council approved however an ordinance that would allow them to take such action in the future on an urgency basis

To provide overflow parking for students, the city may permit at the beginning of the fall semester parking at the city's Red Hill Community Park.

Before the council considers adopting a permit-parking only district on streets around the school, city officials said they will hold a neighborhood meeting.

Mayor Dennis L. Stout said the council then can ask the agreeable to the permit-parking only district on their streets. The district would be formed ostensibly to force students to leave their vehicles in the Red Hill parking lot.

City Council members first rejected the proposal to open the largely empty lots at the park at their April 6 meeting. At that time city traffic engineers were instructed to develop a permit parking plan, without opening the park's lot.

City Manager Lauren Wasserman last week again asked the council to open the Red Hill lot on at least an interim basis until the Chaffey Joint Union High School district opens the new high school campus in Rancho Cucamonga.

Enrollment at the Alta Loma campus is expected to increase until the new campus' anticipated opening for the 1991-

92 school year. Of the 2,350 students currently enrolled at Alta Loma High School, at least 1,200 are at or above legal driving age. There are 350 parking spaces on the school grounds. City traffic engineers estimate that 66 student cars are parking on surrounding city streets Monday through Friday.

Since the school issues permits of their own for parking on campus, students who drive to school and do not possess these permits are forced to compete for space on neighborhood streets or face a $52 fine for parking illegally on campus.

The council was originally reluctant to open the park for student parking,

Fire sprinkler ordinance approved

The Foothill Fire District board of directors has unanimously approved a mandatory fire sprinkler ordinance for all new commercial and industrial projects in Rancho Cucamonga.

The ordinance essentially requires all new commercial and industrial construction of 7,500 square feet or more to be equipped with automatic fire suppression equipment.

The issue has been debated for several months and has seen considerable opposition from the building industry. Developers have argued that the district. which serves the city of Rancho Cucamonga, has no legal authority to enact a sprinkler ordinance.

Directors still have to finalize consideration of a proposal to require sprinkler equipment in all new residential construction.

The company also would pick up the cost of converting the traffic signals leading into the tract to a new fire department controlled system, he said.

The planned housing development would be compatible with existing homes in the area, Buquet said.

Pennhill Land Co. wants to build a 99-lot subdivision on the site, which lies just each of the controversial San Antonio Lakes planned community, which is also a proposed Pennhill project.

The Pennhill site is bordered by Rancho Cucamonga on the east and cut off from the rest of the city by the flood control channel on the west.

The developer has been trying to get approval of the project for two years.

However, Upland council members, fearing the tract would look like a precursor for acceptance of the 440-acre Lakes project, have balked at approving it.

While considering the smaller project's final environmental impact report last week, the council agreed to postpone its decision until Rancho Cucamónga could be approached.

Councilman Frank Carpenter said he had previously contacted several Rancho Cucamonga officials, who expressed an interest in annexation.

Montclair officials and residents honored their own last week, recognizing individuals who freely give of themselves for others

Montclair Mayor Larry Rhinehart awarded the city's second annual "Volunteer of the Year" honors.

May Tikfesi of the Montclair Vista Women's Club won the top honor. Runners-up were Savel Hopkins and Rose McClure, who work with the Montclair Senior Citizens Program, and Frank Byard, who helps with the Montclair Meals on Wheels Inc.

'These are the people, the volunteers, who get things done. I want to thank them for making Montclair a better place to live," Rhinehart said.

"I'm so surprised. This is all because of Sue (Yoakum, who is with the Montclair Human Services Department). I never would have thought I would win this in a million years. I'm touched," an excited, but grateful Tikfesi said after the ceremony

Tikfesi's resume reads like a volunteer's "Who's Who." Besides her active work in the woman's club, Tikfesi's volunteer efforts include assisting at the Senior Citizens Mini Market; distributing food to the needy; helping with the Miss Montclair pageant; helping at Doctors' Hospital of Montclair; and helping at the Montclair Branch Library.

Hopkins and McClure, friends for more than 30 years, work together to make sure the senior market program operates smoothly. Both volunteered as registrars at the optional blood chemistry screening during the annual Health Fair Expo at the Montclair Community Center. And, both are members of the Regional Council on Aging, working to help Montclair's senior citizens.

Byard has worked with the Meals on Wheels program for six years, faithfully delivering lunches to shut-ins and those unable to prepare meals of their own. He serves as the vice president and coordinator of the program.

McKeen said the idea of her "Stroke Awareness Bike Ride" originated with her husband, Joseph McKeen, and herself and through OASR it blossomed. McKeen said she worked out at Peachwood Physical Therapy in Glendora with therapists John Wallace and Laura Knowles. She said she also worked out at The Claremont Club, where she received a great deal of encouragement.

To prepare for the ride, the Ontario woman would take short rides, gradually building up to a 25-mile ride and then a 124-mile one last September.

"I'm not only going to talk about strokes but also the need for you to exercise, take care of yourself and eat right. There are a lot of misconceptions about strokes. They can happen to anyone," she said the day before the race.

And after the ride, McKeen said she plans another challenge

Kid Safe Program aims NOTEBOOK at saving young lives

A new program incorporating fun with tough education through non-graphic, non-violent language has been established to deal with the leading cause of death in children: accidents.

Children playing dangerously near pools drown, inattentive children on bicycles get hit by cars, children flying kites too close to power lines get electrocuted and children not knowing what to do if a fire breaks out suffocate.

Enter: the Kid Safe program. Reaching out to parents and their 6- to 12-year-old children, the Kid Safe program replaces fear with with confidence, strategies and accurate information, said Lynn Casella, public relations director at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

The Kid Safe program is being planned at the hospital, May 21.

Approximately 600 parents and their children are expected to attend the first program, Casella said.

Fliers for parents now are being sent home with 26,000 grade-school students in five area school districts, she said.

Although more than 15 hospitals throughout Southern California are sponsoring free Kid Safe programs May 24, Casella said San Antonio Hospital will be the only one to do so in the local area.

Six pre-registered students from Mountain View Elementary in Claremont were on hand recently to kick off the hospital's upcoming Kid Safe programs.

Also in attendance were the future instructors of CPR, drug abuse prevention and first aid, as well as water, fire, electrical and personal safety programs.

Forthcoming fingerprinting and snapshot services also were explained by Upland police officers Greg Dole and Brent Upland Mayor Robert Nolan also proclaimed May 21 as Kid-Safe Day in Upland and then schoolchildren were treated to hands-on demonstrations.

All but Ryan Seward, 10, eagerly offered an arm to orthopedic technician Jim DeCiccio for wrapping in warm plaster-dipped gauze

While five of the youngsters remarked how "tingly" and then "heavy" the quick-drying casts were, blond and blue-eyed Seward kept his distance saying he had been through the experience plenty of times

Seward explained that he had broken his right arm skateboarding, his left arm playing football, his left foot twirling a ball, his right foot playing soccer and his right leg bicycle riding.

All of the children, many wearing borrowed Kid Safe Tshirts, marveled at "Pluggie the Robot," a friendly and instructive fire hydrant that squirted water when programmed by Upland fire Capt. Joel Cascadden.

And the children enjoyed a scale-model home and outdoor landscape display that offered

The Soviet Union has succeeded in limiting availability, but they have much to learn from the America's prevention and intervention programs, he said.

"It was decreed in May 1985 to cut alcohol production by 50 percent," Remizov said. The move drastically reduced accidents and violent acts related to alcohol abuse, he said.

But the Soviet Union also needs to develop social programs similar to those in the United States, said Remizov, who took extensive notes as he SOMETIMES people find themselves with lots of things they want to sell.

Where do they turn?
The first thing they should think about is how to reach the most people!
Classified Advertising will always be the best way to tell others what you have for sale.
And it doesn't cost a lot of money.
